

Counselor's Corner

mao.yang-lee@yinghuaacademy.org
(612) 788-9095

This is Mao Yang-Lee (Mrs. Lee), your school counselor at Yinghua. In case we have not met, I wanted to introduce myself and share my main roles at Yinghua. Let me know if you have any questions or concerns regarding the information below. In addition, the best way to reach me is through email. I am usually out and about in the school and sometimes I might not be in my office to receive phone calls.

SMALL GROUPS AND INDIVIDUAL COUNSELING

When needed, I may conduct small groups for children with similar concerns or interests. Group counseling enables a counselor to reach more students, and the interaction among the group members often enhances the group's effectiveness.

Much of my time will be used in counseling children individually. Students are encouraged to refer themselves for a conference if they face a problem that may require assistance. Parents and teachers are welcome to make referrals. I work closely with the entire school staff to ensure the best interests of every student. Hopefully, through early intervention, crises can be prevented. If a parent does not want their child to receive any counseling services, please send a written request to the school.

Social and Emotional Learning (SEL) Skills

Younger students (K-1) may see me on a weekly basis for their SEL lessons. This time is designed to promote academic learning as well as personal and social growth. There may be times when I might cover some SEL lessons for the older students per teacher request or as needed accordingly.

The Role of Parents/Guardians

As parents, you are an integral part of the learning process for your child, if there is something specific you want me to work with your child on, please do contact me. I am happy to help.

